

NEWS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

February 3, 2025

Corporate communications leader Dianne Collins joins Lockheed Martin as spokesperson

BETHESDA, Md. – Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) announced today at the company's headquarters that CEO Jim Taiclet has appointed Dianne Collins, former director at the Swanson Corporation, to serve as the company's new official spokesperson. (32 words)

Collins brings more than 20 years experience in corporate communication, public relations and business operations to her new role. As spokesperson, Collins will be responsible for the corporation's media relations, messaging development, marketing communications and stakeholder engagement.

Previously, she was director of external communications for the Swanson Corp., where she led a strategic communications team to manage media relations, crisis management and executive communications.

Collins holds a bachelor's degree in communication from the Georgia Institute of Technology and a master's degree in business administration from the McDonough School of Business at Georgetown University.

"We are thrilled to have Dianne Collins join us. Her extensive experience in corporate communication will bring valuable insight to our team," said Taiclet. "We look forward to the great things she will accomplish with us here at Lockheed Martin."

###

Headquartered in Bethesda, Maryland with more than 350 facilities and approximately 122,000 employees worldwide, Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) is a global leader in defense and aerospace technology. With a commitment to driving innovation and advancing scientific discovery, Lockheed Martin delivers unmatched solutions in aeronautics, missiles and fire control, rotary and mission systems and space. For more information, visit Lockheedmartin.com.

Contact:

Claire Clark

Public relations director, Lockheed Martin

Ccla156@lsu.edu

770-940-1897